

Abstract

A motorcycle including a frame defining left and right sides and a riser supported by the frame. An electronic device including a housing is coupled to the riser. The housing has a left portion disposed on the left side and a right portion disposed on the 5 right side. The motorcycle also includes a plurality of controls on the housing operable to control the electronic device, wherein a majority of the plurality of controls are located on the left portion.